

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY DURING CORONAVIRUS

These are very unsettling times for everyone and particularly those of you who are doing the brilliant job of continuing to care for children in the school based hubs or through online/phone contact.

In situations like this, it is normal for us all to feel more anxious and fearful, and children and young people may express their emotions in lots of different ways, often through changes in their mood or behaviour. As adults, we need to make sure we find ways to support our own wellbeing, so we can continue to best support those in our care.

The Educational Psychologists are available to offer a listening, supportive ear for you; to discuss any concerns you may have regarding the children/ young people/families in your care, or to have a chat about your own wellbeing. We can also talk directly to parents/carers if they are in need of a supportive chat.

Most of us work part-time so may not always be available on the phone, however, if you contact us by email, we will arrange a telephone/video call. We anticipate that any discussions around individual children will be anonymous. However, if you do wish to discuss children in detail and share their personal and/ or family information you MUST have parental/ carer consent.
